

Seriously (not), what is it with these liberal thinkers?

What is it with these liberals?

Take gun control for example. Everyone knows we have the right to bear arms; it says so right there in the Bill of Rights.

So show me where it says I need a background check if I want to set a Howitzer in my front yard or buy a Glock out of a vending machine.

And where does it say convicted felons or the mentally ill can't have guns? Don't they have the same rights as anyone else in this country?

Second, what's up with these proposed cuts to defense spending? Have you been overseas lately?

Who in their right mind would recommend cutting the military budget when there are terrorists out there attacking our embassies, taking our citizens hostage and attempting to interrupt our oil supply?

Finally, when did we decide that everybody deserves a free ride? If you don't have a place to live, anything to eat, or can't go to the doctor, don't blame me.

It's not my fault you're homeless, hungry or sick, so don't expect me to care or do anything about it. I managed to get by just fine without any handouts and you can, too.

Here's a suggestion: Get a job. And don't try to use the economy as an excuse for laziness.

When I was a kid, I remember walking 10 miles to school every day – uphill both ways. Did I let a little thunderstorm, blizzard or tornado stop me from getting my education? Absolutely not!

Oh, and I still had to do all my chores when I got home.

Where did liberals get this crazy, obviously socialist idea that we are all in this together?

Maybe they read it in some book they found lying around their hotel room. Who knows?

Liberals. Who needs them?
